ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

An overlay network is used to logically represent an underlying physical network. A map associated with a region of the overlay network includes location information for nodes physically close in the physical network. The map is used to select a closest node in the 5   physical network.